

The Heart Tree Fairy

By Gail McNaughton, February 14, 2011

There was joy in her heart,
For she received your love,
That drifted in and out of the branches of the trees,
As you thought of your sweetheart and loved ones.
She was witness to the strength of your tenderness,
And the devotion of your soul to exude love.
The hearts that were nesting in the trees,
Settled in her heart,
And then became who she was –
One big heart filled with hearts radiating,
Pure love, caring and gratitude.
She pulsed like the beating of your heart,
And the ecstasy and intimacy of a kiss.
When she felt your sweet dreams of emotions,
She sent them back into the cosmos,
Recycling love,
Through the kindred spirit of Mother Nature,
To feed the empty space that the world needed fuelled.
Flowers became hearts.
Cats became the symbol of love,
The birds and spiders lingered near,
For they were part of this peace power web,
That sanctified itself in the trees.
The ground burst forth with hearts,
And every step taken was in the name of love.
The Heart Tree Fairy is there for you,
And she will magnify the glowing embers of your love tenfold,
And distribute it with a cupid's arrow,
To those in need, those who ask and those who seek without knowing.
We ask in wonderment if this is really possible,
And Fleecy the dog looks on,
Knowing that every day miracles happen to everyday people,
So just reach into the tree and pull out a heart for yourself,
And let the magic begin.

Happy
Valentine's Day
